Writing and citing – Printed books (whole works)

NECESSARY INFORMATION

Author(s)
For books, put each author's last name, then a comma, then the first name, then any additional initials. Separate the last author from the second-to-last author with a comma.

Year of publication
For books, include only the year of copyright, in parenthesis, then end with a period. If no date of publication is listed, put "n.d." in the parenthesis.

Title of book
Give the full title of the book, including the subtitle if one is given. Capitalize only the first word of the title, and the first word of any subtitle. Separate title and subtitle with a colon. Write the title in italics. For works in other languages than English, give a translation of the title in square brackets.

Edition/revision number (other than the first)
If no edition number or revision information is present, assume that the book is a first edition. Write 2 ed. or Rev. ed.

Place of publication
Certain common cities of publication are included with no additional information; list the city, followed by a colon (:). If the book's place of publication is not well known, additional information is needed. For American locations, include the city and state, separated by a comma. For other locations, include the city and country, separated by a comma. Follow each type of location with a colon.

Publishing entity
Give as much of the publisher's name as necessary to render it comprehensible. Completely spell out the names of university presses and corporations, but cut such words as Inc., Co., and Publishers from commercial publishing companies. Follow the publisher's name with a period.

(page instructions are partly taken from APA Reference Style written by by David S. Baker and Lynn Henrichsen at Brigham Young University)

Page numbers in Citations
In the citations (parenthetical or footnotes) the Institute insists on reference to page/pages. It is not reasonable to demand from your reader to read the whole book or article to find the same argument/conclusions/data as you have used. The exception would be if you are really referring to the whole publication as such. If you are referring to one page only, use the abbreviation for page, p., in front of the number. Omit p. or pp. in front of two or more pages.
EXAMPLES:

BOOK with single author

Full bibliographic reference:

Parentheses in text:
(Piasecki, 1995, p. 92)

BOOK with three authors

Full bibliographic reference:

Parentheses in text:
(Turner, Pearce, Bateman, 1994)

Second time mentioned:
(Turner, et al., 1994, p. 92)

BOOK with more than three authors

Full bibliographic reference:

It is possible to write first author followed by "et al."

Parentheses in text:
(Callenbach, Capra, Goldman, Lutz, & Marburg, 1993)

Second time mentioned:
(Callenbach, et al., 1993, 100-104)

BOOK/REPORT by a corporate author

A corporate author may be a commission, an association or any other group whose individual members are not identified on the title page. Cite the book/report by the corporate author even if it is the same as the publisher. Corporate authors are spelled out, even in the footnotes, although a familiar acronym may be used the second and subsequent times. Be consistent and use the same name and language through out your bibliography. You may need to translate the title if it is not in English.

Full bibliographic reference:

Parentheses in text:
(Swedish Environmental Protection Agency, 1997a, p. 15)

Second time mentioned:
(Swedish EPA, 1997a, p. 15)